The New R.A. ad grew up as an American artist, pet as a matter of birthright he really be considered to be an ican, and his election should be ded by our cousins as another some tribute paid to American and friendship. He is the third atlantic artist who, within a very period, has been elevated to associate and the higher distinction. England's Defence of European Liberty.

It is in American periodical literature that stories of the Revolution and the victories of Napoleon have of late been so strikingly popular. The services rendered by Lafayette in the Colonial revolt have no doubt stimulated this re-awatened interest, which has lost nothing by the Venezuelan controvery. At the same time no history of the Napoleonie wars can overlook the splendid courage and self-denial of England in her defence of European liberty. Mr. William M. Sloane, in the "Century" for April, pays a handsome tribute to the heroic success of Moore at Corunna, "after his brave fight with Soult and thes mortal wound which struck him down in the hour of victory, and to the self-forgetfulness which enabled him, in the agonies of death, to make all the arrangements to emberth his men on the belated ahips—a brilliant page of history, perhaps the finest record of gloty won in retreat, of patience, moderation, and success in the very hour of bitterest disappointment. It was the spirit and example of Moore which made possible the victories of Wellington."

which made possible the victories of Wellington."

Charmbers of Morrors.

The same magazine, by the way, has an engrossing and exhaustive article upon the four conspiracies against Lincoln, and more particularly the last, which added the name of the famous President to the roll of martyrs. I wonder if the preservation of a certain class of criminal relics is a good thing? I think not. It seems to me that it would be in the interest of a healthy imagination to destroy the accessories and implements belonging to outrage and murder. It is enough that morbid natures should be fed on facts, without being excited by the exhibition of assassirs knives, pistols, and other weapons, not to mention gory mementoes in the way of clothes and furniture. The War Department at Washington contains a collection of meskets, boots, revolvers, and other things used in the conspiracy against Lincoln and his Ministers. and the drama. The French Revolution and the life of Napoloon are examples in point. It is quite remarkable to note the number of new books which are the outcome of this rewarkening of an interest in French history. One observes it, not only in current publications, but in the catalogues of second-hand booksellers. In connection with the French Revolution it is curious and often grim to recall how all the leading figures came utterly to grief. It is by some regarded as apocryphal that the inventor of the guillotine himself was one of the first victims to the new machine. There is no doubt that Rouget de Liale, the author of the "Marseillaire." narrowly escaped the guillotine. He was by no means a sabid Republican. The inspiration for

ROYALTY AT BRIGHTON.

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT.
The Duke and Duchess of York arrived at Brighton on Thursday for the purpose of visiting the National Union of Teachers Conference. The town was elaborately decorated. Their royal highnesses were met at the railway station by the Mayor and Cosporation. In East-st. a serious accident occurred. A number of firmen had manned 2 fire-escapes, which met across the road, forming a triumphal arch. Without warning the escapes parted in the centre, and the men were precipitated to the ground, a few minutes before the procession passed. Twelve men were precipitated to the ground, a few minutes before the procession passed. Twelve men were percipitated to the ground, a few minutes before the procession passed. Twelve men were seriously injured internally.

A later telegram says: In Castle-sq. an arch had been erected, composed of 2 fire-ecapes, joined at the top by scaling ladders. Barely 5 minutes before the royal procession was due to arrive, the firemen ran up the ladders of the eccapes forming the sides of the arch to the very summit, and manned every rung.

Two or 3 moments elapsed, and then the crowd lining the pavement was struck with horror to see the arch collapse. There was no warning, and the erection came down like a house of cards. Many of the men were mixed up in the debris, which fell with a thud. There were over 20 men on the arch at the time, and it was evident— and the opinion was expressed by the firemen themselves—that it was evident—and the opinion was expressed by the firemen themselves—that it was overleded. Other firemen were on engines at the base, and, with onlookers, immediately went to the resone

KIDNAPPED AND OUTRAGED AT EXTRAORDINARY BYONY.

Yesterday morning the details of a most extraordinary story of kidnapping and attempted outrage on a Greenwich girl transpired, and created much sensation. On the previous afternoon, Phobe King, the daughter of a Deptford hammerman, lving at 101. Greenwichtroad, whilst playing near St. Alfege Church, was accosted by a man who tried to induce her to accompany him for a ride, offering her awests. After much pressing the child started off with the man, but on the way to the but they met the child's elder sister, who told her to leave the man. Besides, the child started off with the man, but on the way to the but they met the child's elder sister, who told her to leave the man. Besides the child's story, as reported to a representative of "The Feople" yesterday afternoon, the two got on to an omnibus and went as far as Deptford Lower-road, where they took the tran and went to Fenchurch-atreet Station. Here the Took Trickets for Purplest, and on arrival they walked for a considerable

Then striking off into some fields the man caught hald of the child, threw her down, and cutting in two a child, threw here down, and cutting in two a child, three here down, and cutting in two a child. child, threw her down, and cutting in two a skipping rope which she was carry-ing, bound her arms and legs tightly. After pulling her about, disarranging her clothing, and failing in his dastardly purpose, the man took her in his arms, and carrying her some distance, threw her bodily into a disused chalk-pit, near a place known locally as "Jack Well's Wood," and then made off. Here, later in the day, the child in an pyseri-cal and injured condition, was discovered by two lads named Wheel, who were attracted to the spot by her cries. They at once ran home and informed their mother of the discovery and she convered the child to the spot by her cries. They at once ran home and informed their mother of the discovery, and she conveyed the child to the rottage close by. After attending to the rottage close by a constant of the police, who with some from. They are child to state where she came from. They are constant of the child was brought home in charge of a meaning the child was brought home and part of a meaning the constant of the constant of the child was brought home. The little girl has given the following a scallary. The little trousers, black cost and vest, white tie, and hard felt hat. He was apparently between 25 and 30 years of age, had a slight monatache and side whisters, and hard felt hat. He was apparently between 25 and 30 years of age, had a slight monatache and side whisters where the slight limp. Inquiry in the neighbourhood elicited the information that a unantiforting the tied to go for walks with him, but unsuccessfully. The local police, acting with the Essez constabulary, are making searching inquiry into the affair, both in the Green with district and in the neighbourhood where the outrage was perpetrated, but up to the present they have man.

A MEDDLESOME MEASURE.

In spite of the fate which overtook a similar measure eight years ago, the supporters of the principle of interference with tradesmen's business have introduced an Early Closing Bill into the House of Commons. The text of this measure is before us, and, after studying it carefully, we can only express our astonishment that anybody should be found to believe that the House of Commons will sanction such gross and gratuitous interference with the liberty of the individual. Briefly stated, the bill enacts as follows:—Applications may be made to the Local Authority in any district or part of a district, for an order to close all the shops belonging to any class or classes specified in the application" at any hour not earlier than seven o'clock in the evening that the Local them in this or that locality. These, however, are only minor considerations. The fundamental objection to the bill is this—that it interferes with the liberty of adult labour. Now the liberty of grown-up persons to work or not to work at their own discretion is one which the law of England has ever most carefully guarded, and with which it declines to admit interference. On that ground the House of Commons regards with just suspicion any measure teading the infringement of that sound principle. The present bill is, furthermore, tainted with the tyranny of local veto. It is just as unfair that two-thirds of the local butchers, bakers, or grocers in a particular district.
